The Brothers.

BY CHARLES SPRAGUE We are not two-the others sleep Through Death's untroubled night; We are but two--O, let us keep

The link that binds us bright ! Heart leaps to heart-the sacred flood That warms us is the same ; That good old man-his honest blood

Alike we fondly claim. We in our mother's arms were locked-Long he her love repaid: Round the same hearth we played.

Our boyish sports were all the same, Each little Joy and wee; Let manhood keep alive the flame, Lit up so long ago.

WE SEE BUT TWO-be that the hand To bold us till we die Shoulder to shoulder let us stand, Till site by side we lie.

To a Petunia Flower.

The u'st come at last, Sweet lovely flower,

Mid winter winds and chilling blast, To eneer us for an hour. With coral brigh

Sweet, levely flawer We hall thy coming with delight, Thou bring'st to mind.

Sweet, gentle flower Those haloyon days when we reclined In thy soft hower; How hast then been, Thou gentle flower.
